Classic Sports Car Show Park City Saturday, July 26

'Twas a beautiful day for car showing on Saturday July 26, and there was a terrific turn out at the Classic Sports Car Show on lower Main Street in Park City.

This show is organized by our friends in the Bonneville Austin Healey Club, under the supervision of Dave Maxwell.

Generously, the BAHC extends a broad invitation to all sports cars 1987 or earlier, and a wonderful variety always shows up.

The prize categories reflect this diversity, with awards for Austin Healeys, Jaguars, MGs, Porsches, and Other Classic Sports Cars.

The WMJR is very fortunate for this annual invitation given that we stopped organizing our own JCNA sanctioned concours several years ago.

Awards to Jaguar owners included

- Peoples Choice: Art and Martha Pasker Mark V drop head coupe
- First Place: Gary Lindstrom,

XK140 drop head coupe

• Class Award: Jim and Hermione Klekas, E-type OTS

• Class Award: Jim and Susan Revel, E-type fixed head coupe.

A fun surprise was a chap who showed up with an XK150 FHC on a flat bed trailer. One is being kind when one says this car is in rough condition, given that it lacks engine, rear axle, and interior.

Nevertheless the owner, who received it in payment for a debt, swears he will restore it. Good luck and God speed to him!

Summer Barbeque At The Borgs' Cabin In Midway Saturday, August 16

Two years ago we had a great time at a barbeque hosted by Ken and Joan Borg at their wonderful cabin in Midway, UT.

Last time it was after the Park City concours. This year Your Officers decided since it was such fun last time it deserves its own spot on our calendar.

And so it will be: 6pm Saturday August 16. Hamburgers, hot dogs and (yum!) bratwurst will be provided by the WMJR Treasury — also soft drinks and water.

Mapquest says it's 38 miles and 44 minutes from our standard rendezvous place, the Walmart (ex Kmart) at the mouth of Parley's Canyon, 2705 Parley's Way in Salt Lake City.

For those who might like to travel in a convoy there will be rendezvous at Walmart at 4:45pm for a 5:00 departure.

Additional features will be a Quiz prepared by the Cadys, and a spectacular sunset.

Members are encouraged to bring a side dish, salad, or dessert, plus any other drinks they would like. The cabin is at 259 St. Moritz St. in Midway, UT.

Total Travel Estimate: 38.29 miles - about 44 minutes

Pittsburgh Vintage Car Show and Gran Prix Races July 2014

Given that I needed to visit the Pittsburgh area sometime this summer I decided to time it so I could attend an event I've always wanted to take in: Pittsburgh Vintage Grand Prix week.

This is a festival featuring classic cars of all marques, plus a healthy representation of new cars, especially high performance (the Pittsburgh area new car dealers were the presenting sponsor).

This year marks the 32nd offering, and includes 10 days of show, parades, rallies and races.

The venue couldn't be better: Schenley Park, a 456 acre preserve with hills, valleys, trails, bridges, twisty roads and even a golf course donated in 1889 to the City of Pittsburgh by English heiress Mary Schenley.

I know it very well, having spent most of my 15 years in Pittsburgh in its neighborhood (Oakland) attending, teaching, and generally goofing off at the two universities nearby.

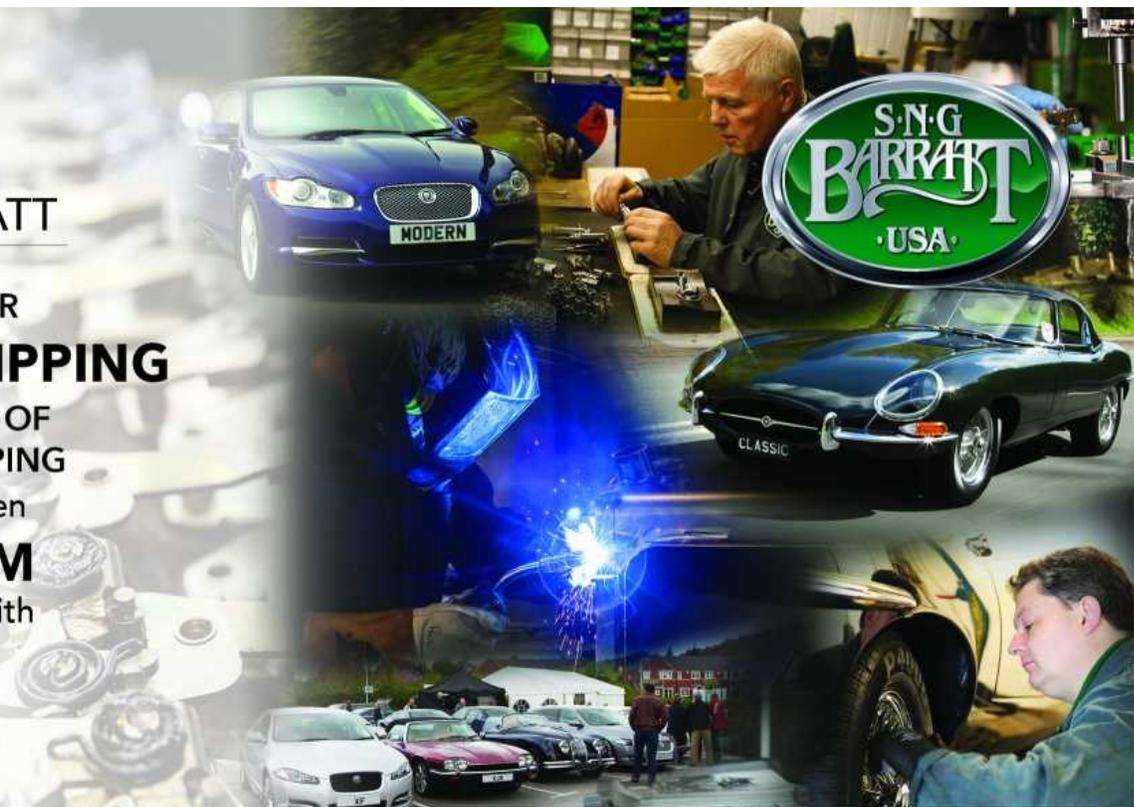

Sandy and I even owned a house for seven years less than a mile away.

There were two events that I especially wanted to see: the car show on Saturday, and the small bore vintage car races on Sunday.

The car show is an amalgamation of separate car club shows and concours, including a JCNA sanctioned concours presented by the Jaguar Club of Pittsburgh.

I estimate there were 500-600 cars in total, with a fine representation of British cars old and new.

On Sunday there were at least twice or three times the number of spectators spread around the course. In addition to the terrific BMW's and Elvas.

All in all this week is not to be missed for those who have any interest in sports cars. I course layout (2.33 miles, 21 turns, 140 ft. elevation change, and a lap record of 2:11.6) there are ample points of view throughout the course from many hills

In recent years a purpose-built road race course has been built in adjacent Beaver County called the Pittsburgh International Race Complex, or PittRace for short. This is where the large bore race cars do their thing, e.g. Cobras, Porsches, Lolas,

Historical Slang We Love From The Oxford English Dictionary

By Alison Nastasi, Feb 1, 2014

All hail the silver fox of dictionaries. The Oxford English Dictionary turns 130 today. The first published installment of the definitive dictionary was printed back in 1884. The OED took more than 40 years to reach completion — all 400,000 plus words and phrases in 10 volumes. One thing that makes the OED special is its inclusion of historical (and modern) slang. Endangered, archaic words need love too, so we've picked a few of our favorites from the OED and its family of dictionaries. Feel free to share the old-timey words you can't live without, below.

snootful

Noun
1. enough alcoholic drink to make one drunk:

they're tongue-tied until they've had a snootful

1.1 as much as one can take of something:
he decided he'd had a snootful of playing the role

foozle

n. a clumsy or botched attempt at something, especially a shot in golf.

v. botch; bungle:
(as adjective fozzled) sliced approach shots and fozzled putts

Origin
mid 19th century: from German dialect fuseln 'work badly'; compare with fusel oil.

hotsy-totsy

Adjective
1. used as a term of approval:
hotsy-totsy rhythms thrill the air
2. another term for hoity-toity.

Origin
early 20th century: reduplication of hot, a fanciful formation by Billie de Beck (died 1942), US cartoonist.

twitterpat

Adjective
1. infatuated or obsessed:
Gus is still hopelessly twitterpat by Lee smiling into each other's eyes, a

Historical Slang We Love —cont'd from p. 7

seemingly twitterpated couple glided past

1.1 in a state of nervous excitement:
CBS execs are twitterpated over this new idea

Origin

1940s: from twitter + -pated 'having a head or mind of a specified kind' (from pate); popularized by the 1942 film Bambi.

growlery

When the 12th edition of the Concise Oxford English Dictionary added around 400 new entries, they had to shuffle some words along to the great dictionary in the sky. That meant one of our favorites was cut: growlery. The "place to growl in, private room, den" was used in Charles Dickens' novel Bleak House: "This, you must know, is the Growlery. When I am out of humour, I come and growl here."

piffle

n. nonsense.

Origin

mid 19th century: diminutive of imitative piff-.

blotto

adj. extremely drunk:
we got blotto

Origin

early 20th century: from blot + -o.

tickety-boo

adj. in good order; fine:
everything is tickety-boo

Origin

1930s: perhaps from Hindi ठीक है 'all right'.

eternitarian

n. one who believes in the eternity of the soul.

I am an eternitarian

blind tiger

n. an illegal bar.

Origin

mid 19th century: probably so named because in order to evade prohibition laws, the bars were disguised as exhibition halls for natural curiosities.

judder

v. (especially of something mechanical) shake and vibrate rapidly and with force:

the steering wheel juddered in his hand

n. an instance of rapid and forceful shaking and vibration:
the car gave a judder

Origin

1930s: imitative; compare with shudder.

n. a person's buttocks.

Origin

1960s: popularized by the US television programme Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In, where it was used as a nonsense word with an air of innuendo but intentionally vague meaning: of unknown origin.
